Project Gutenberg is a charity endeavor, sustained through volunteers and fundraisers, that aims to collect and provide as many high-quality ebooks as possible. Most of its library consists of public domain titles, but it has other stuff too if you're willing to look around.

Isotherm And Isobar Maps Lab

Students create isolines for two different maps - one featuring air pressure (isobars) and the other featuring temperature readings (isotherms). This is a two-day lab that also has students use an Internet-based simulation to test out their isoline creatio

Students will create models (isotherm and isobar maps) at this station using temperature and air pressure readings at several locations across an area. Students will use the models to identify high and low pressure systems, warm and cold air masses and relative wind speed and direction.

Isobars and isotherms are lines on weather maps which represent patterns of pressure and temperature, respectively. They show how temperature and pressure are changing over space and so help describe the large-scale weather patterns across a region in the map. Why do I care? Isobars and isotherms make it easier to read and analyze weather maps.

Objective The purpose of this lab is to become familiar with how to construct isotherms and isobar maps. An isotherm is a map that connects equal values of temperature in intervals of 10 ° F. To create an isotherm map you must first find the lowest value ranging from 10-100 ° F and connect all the points of the same values.

Lab: Isobar Maps. Introduction. Air pressure is determined by the weight of the overlying air and it varies from place to place and over time. Pressure variations bring about air motions that set the stage for much of the weather we experience. Knowing patterns of pressure across the country is basic to understanding what the weather is and ...

Just like the interactive temperature contouring tool, you may draw isobars directly on the map. If you prefer an "old-school" approach, you may print out a hard copy and sharpen your trusty pencil (here's a printable version of the map). When attacking this map, I suggest that you start with the 1016 mb isobar (it's one of the easier lines).

An isobar is a line of constant pressure. There are many other terms like these which are known collectively as "isopleths". Isotherms and isobars, plus other isopleths, are very helpful for weather forecasting. If you look at a map that just shows temperature for different cities, you won't be able to see the full pattern of the weather system.
