Paths Of Glory

I consider Paths of Glory as one of the most memorable of Kubrick's entire output. The most remarkable aspect of this pioneer anti-war film is the complete absence of any persons depicting the "real" enemy.

Paths of Glory (1957) - IMDb

Paths of Glory is a 1957 American anti-war film co-written and directed by Stanley Kubrick, based on the novel of the same name by Humphrey Cobb. Set during World War I, the film stars Kirk Douglas as Colonel Dax, the commanding officer of French soldiers who refuse to continue a suicidal attack, after which Dax attempts to defend them against a charge of cowardice in a court-martial.

Paths of Glory is a bit of a departure for Jeffrey Archer. For once, he takes a real life event and gives it a fictional treatment. It is the story of George Mallory, who was once asked why he would want to climb a mountain. He famously replied, "because it's there". Mallory's attempt to climb Everest (when no one had yet reached the summit) became the subject of much speculation in later years, after his frozen body was discovered near the summit in 1999. Did he succeed or didn't he ?

"Paths of Glory" was the film by which Stanley Kubrick entered the ranks of great directors, never to leave them. When I interviewed Kirk Douglas in 1969, he recalled it as the summit of his acting career: "There's a picture that will always be good, years from now. I don't have to wait 50 years to know that; I know it now."

It's been noted that the title of the film was taken from Grey's 18th Century poem, "Elegy in a Country Graveyard." Here is the stanza: "The boast of heraldry, the pomp of pow'r, And all that beauty, all that wealth e'er gave, Awaits alike th' inevitable hour. The paths of glory lead but to the grave." 22 of 22 found this interesting PATHS OF GLORY is among the most powerful antiwar films ever made. The story takes place in 1916 France, as the French command orders an exhausted unit to wrest control of an anthill from the Germans--expecting a casualty rate of 60 percent. The battle--during which the Germans are never seen, indicating that the French are their own worst ...
